Students who were eligible for financial aid and demonstrate an exceptional financial need can be considered for the student portion of the CRRSAA grant as a result of the pandemic. Acceptable documentation included expenses based on the cost of attendance that included technology, health care, childcare, course materials, rent, food, or other related expenses. The institution used the grant limits for the student federal aid from our existing emergency loan program reducing it to $750 per student to maximize the number of students who would receive the grant. We then increased the student federal aid amount to $1,000 limit after the first round consistent with our emergency loan limits to assist students with exceptional financial needs as it relates to the pandemic. Additional student federal aid was provided to students who were able to demonstrate an exceptional financial need above the $1,000 on an exception basis.
